British Defeat Is Goal of Germany

Reich Seeks to Destroy Britain's Supremacy in the World

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—An authoritative source announced Thursday that Germany has decided to "fight until British supremacy in the world is destroyed."

Germany, this source said, "will have no peace terms to offer until this victory is won."

The statement was made in connection with the German reply to the mediation offer of Belgium and the Netherlands.

Russia Plays Finland

MOSCOW, Russia.—(AP)—The Soviet Russian press, intensifying its attacks on Finnish foreign policy, Thursday quoted an Estonian newspaper as saying that Finland's "obduracy" is impairing relations with the U. S. S. R.

In a dispatch from Tallinn, TASS, the official Russian news agency, said an Estonian newspaper criticized Finland's military preparations and urged that she "regulate relations with her great Eastern neighbor as soon as possible."

Razor Slayer Gets Life Prison Term

Claude Martin, 41, Pleads Guilty in Ashdown Circuit Court

ASHDOWN, Ark.—(AP)—Claude Martin, 41, pleaded guilty Wednesday to first degree murder in the razor slaying of his wife October 27 and was sentenced to life imprisonment by Circuit Judge Minor Wilcox.

Mrs. Martin was found dead in their farm home 20 miles south of here in the Red River bottoms with her throat slashed. Martin's throat also slashed, was found in the yard.

Martin made no statement after his lawyer plead guilty. Sheriff J. G. Sanderson said Martin blamed "family troubles."

Ickes Raps Truck Jam on Highways

Cabinet Officer Wishes for Armored Tank to Blow Through

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes said Thursday he longed for the time he can take an armored tank down a "truck infested" highway, "bumping these pests from the road."

In an address prepared for the convention of the American Automobile association, Ickes advised Americans to mend their highway manners so as to attract foreign visitors.

When the Panama Canal was opened, in 1914, many New York newspapers took no notice of the event whatever. The reason was that war had broken out in Europe a few days before. Since that time 100,000,000 vessels carrying half a billion tons of cargo have moved through the waterway.

He died of a skull fracture after undergoing an emergency operation at the hospital to relieve pressure on the brain. Death came a short time after the operation was completed.

Mr. Sutton was connected with the South Arkansas Implement Co., at Hope until about three years ago when he was transferred to Texarkana office. However, Mr. Sutton still maintained his residence in Hope.

Reports said that Mr. Sutton was driving a light truck headed east toward Texarkana from Maud, Texas, when the truck figured in a collision with an automobile driven by Sidney Rosner of Austin, Texas.

Rosner, who was accompanied by his negro chauffeur, said he was traveling west from Texarkana. He was quoted as saying that the truck skidded as the two machines met, throwing it into a ditch. Sutton's truck remained on the highway, Rosner said. Texarkana officers were to question Rosner and his chauffeur at Texarkana Thursday, reports said.

Navy Calls in Last of the Coal Burners; Weep, Matey, for 'Sacramento' Was a Lady

"Galloping Ghost of China's Coast" Sent to the Lakes

25-Year-Old Gunboat Saw Adventure in the Far Places

NOW IS A TRAINER

She'll Teach Recruits at Inland Port on Great Lakes

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Writer

Sing a dirge of the sea, matey—the last coal-burning ship of the United States navy has been driven from the oceans.

When the stubby coastal gunboat, Sacramento, "Galloping Ghost of the China Coast," started a few days ago for an ignominious retirement berth in the freshwater port of Michigan City, Ind., she closed the book on a whole era of naval propulsion. The dominion of oil now is complete.

They're making the Sacramento, a naval reserve training ship, they've stripped her of all but two of her weapons—guns that have been smoking from more than firing practice, too, and that's more than some of those snooty Diesel-driven packets can boast. They'll keep her from the frontier seas where she's chugged these 25 years. But they can't strip out the holes that bullets blasted through her funnels on the Yangtze. They can't chip out all of the concrete that was poured into her bow to reinforce plates torn by the ice filled seas up Archaengway. They can't rob a lady of her reputation—and the Sacramento was and is a lady.

A Proper Lady Can Nudge With Vigor

A bit active for a lady? Yes, but she proved that a proper lady can ally tossing in a little extra dig—and still keep her good name.

First it was Vera Cruz. She had scarcely been commissioned in 1914 when she was sent down for the U. S. naval landing and occupation of the city. Then it was the Barbary Coast. She was the first American in that wicked lane since the days of Deatur, and she still had her good name when she left.

During the World War, she helped convoy 438 ships, sailing more than 63,000 miles. She rescued the crews of the Sebastian when it burned at sea in 1917, and of the Swan River when it sank while the Sacramento was trying to tow it to port.

In 1919 she was frozen in a Murl mark while serving the troops guard the Russian and Siberian Railway. Three years later, she appeared at Vladivostok in the nick of time to save foreigners caught in the middle between fighting Reds and White Russians.

She turned south for the Honduras disturbances in 1922. Then she was off for seven years around the world, mostly on the China Coast.

She relieved earthquake victims in Yokohama in 1923, helped the Philippine Constabulary against rebels in Socorro in 1924.

In 1926-27 she helped protect the foreign colony at Canton during an uprising. By 1931 she was off Belize, Honduras, helping earthquake victims and rescuing a group of castaways on Cocos Island.

A Lady Stands Up Under Fire
She was present at the first bombing of Shanghai by the Japanese. One bomb landed 20 yards off her bow, broke in all her ports, smashed the boats injured several of her crew. She evacuated refugees from Shanghai and Hong Kong to Manila. She was at the bombing of Swatow, too.

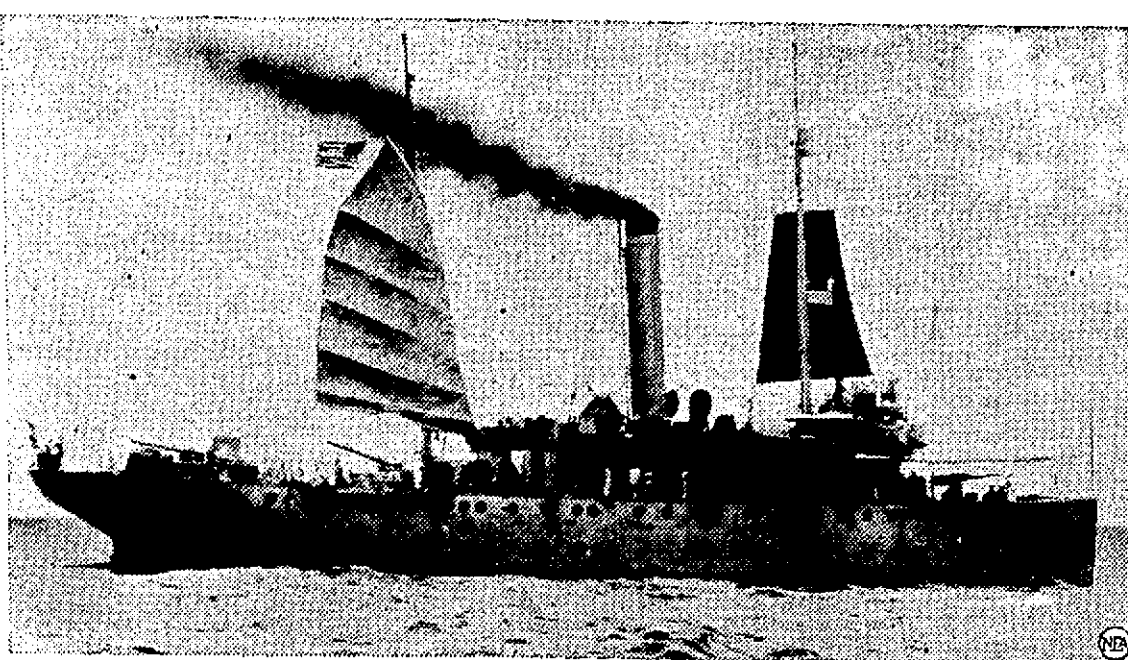

Yes, she was a lady, and proud, too, but not to proud to dress herself in the sail of a Chinese junk one time and sail along with the Oriental wind to conserve the coal in her bunkers.

Last May she started home. Only 226 feet long, drawing but 14 feet, and very slow, she tossed like a chip in a typhoon. She said farewell to Stratis Settlements, Singapore, Penang, Aden, Suez, Port Said and Alexandria and steamed on into another storm in the Mediterranean. But on past Naples, Marseilles, Gibraltar, the Azores and Bermuda, she came.

She reached New York in time to serve at the scene of the Squalus disaster. She stood by during the long weeks of the struggle to raise the sunken sub, acting as a "hotel" for the rescue workers, and helping to tow the Squalus to Portsmouth.

And now she's coming down to St. Lawrence to the Great Lakes that will be her prison.

Frankly, it's no way to treat a lady

Capone Set Free; 7 Years in Prison

U. S. Turns Him Loose to Relatives at Secret Release Place

LEWISBURGH, Pa.—(AP)—The federal government freed Al Capone Thursday after seven years in prison, but the whereabouts of the prohibition era gangland czar remained a secret.

His release from federal custody to relatives was announced at Washington by officials.

At Lewisburg, however, watchers who waited outside the Northeastern penitentiary gates from before dawn until the announcement from Washington hours later said his release must have taken place at a rendezvous outside this small town.

Bobkittens Battle Texarkana at 7:30

Closely-Matched Teams to Play Under Lights at Hammons Stadium

The Hope Junior High School Bobkittens will tangle at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night with the Texarkana Joes, Junior Tigers in a football contest at Hammons stadium.

The Bobkittens will be fighting for a victory as Texarkana holds the upper-hand with a 12-7 win last week at Texarkana. Hope's chief players are Bell and Sanford in the backfield and Astin in the line.

Texarkana's star performer is reported to be Stone, a backfield man. Both teams are reported in top shape. Admission will be 5 and 25 cents. Ten-minute quarters will be played.

Coch Samges of Hope had not decided on his starting lineup at noon Thursday and will probably wait until near game-time to give the assignments.

Homescoming will be observed at the Hope-Clarksville conference contest Friday night at Hope.

Miss Lucille Ruggles will reign over festivities as queen. She will have for her maids Misses Mary Sue Kent, Martha Houston, Nancy Hill, Nancy Faye Williams, Dorothy Henry and Rose Marie Hendrix.

Friday's contest will be the final home conference game of the season and a large crowd is expected. Based on records of both teams this year, the game looms as a close battle.

The Bobkittens have lost only to Blytheville, 14 to 6, while the only blot on the Clarksville team's record is a 6 to 0 loss to Fort Smith last week.

FSA Aim Today Is People, Not Crops

Administrator Alexander Addresses FSA Conference at L. R.

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Dr. W. W. Alexander, national administrator of the Farm Security Administration (FSA), lectured here Thursday that his agency is bringing out a "new way of thinking" in the United States Department of Agriculture.

"In days gone by the leaders set their goal on the improving of crops, but gave little thought to helping people," he told a conference of FSA workers.

"The Department of Agriculture has done a lot for crops, but little for the people. The Farm Security Administration is doing something for the people. The Department of Agriculture is orienting itself to this new way of thinking. The next great step of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will be helping the people."

'Babe in the Woods' Back Home

Like the Babes in the Woods, Bruce Catton, 7, covered himself with leaves at night to keep warm in sub-freezing weather he endured while lost in the rugged Arizona mountains. Urge U. S. 'Stop Watch' Arbitration to End Dispute in Motor Industry

By BRUCE CATTON

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Experts on labor disputes here believe that the recent history of the textile industry offers a valuable tip to the auto industry in wangles like the one currently causing a costly stoppage of work in the Chrysler plants.

Central point of this dispute is the speed at which certain operations are put through.

The union demands a voice in setting that speed. The company replies that to grant it would be a long first step toward admitting the union to a share in the management of the organization.

Textile Industry Hit Similar Snag

The textile industry hit the same snag several years ago and got around it to the satisfaction of organized labor and management alike. It did this largely by using the services of a skilled technical staff maintained by the Division of Conciliation of the U. S. Department of Labor.

Here's how this body works: A dispute over speed of operations arises in a textile mill. Representatives of management and labor argue and reach no agreement.

The Division of Conciliation offers its services and they are accepted. A government technical expert comes to the scene.

He makes a detailed stop-watch study of the operation in question. Then he makes studies of similar operations in other textile mills—in as many as 15 or 20, sometimes. He comes back, calls in both sides, and explains his findings.

By showing how the operation speed in the local mill compares with the average for similar plants, and by calling on his own technical knowledge to suggest ways in which adjustments can be made. He usually

Unscrupulous Sympathy

A steward on the Normandie was asked how he liked his work and replied fine; that the tips were very generous, but that he nearly lost his job on the last trip.

It seems there were several days of rough weather and in taking a bowl of hot soup to a state room he unfortunately lost his balance, tripped and poured the contents of the bowl into the lap of an old gentleman asleep in a deck chair. "And just what did you do?" "Oh, I just tipped the old fellow on the shoulder and said, "I do hope you feel better now, Sir!"

Not Concerned

A hillbilly whose feet had been toughened by a lifetime of going barefoot, was standing before his cabin fireplace. Suddenly his wife smelt something burning.

"Swell anything burnin', Paw?" "Naw, Maw." "I thought I did, Paw." "What makes you think so, Maw?" "Well, you're standin' on a live coal, Paw. You better move your foot!" "Which one, Maw?"—Medley.

wasn't it? How did it happen?" "Oh, somebody blew an auto horn outside and a minute later the male quartette was all that was left."

facility.

Thayer propels Milady at a breathtaking pace through a series of adventures and misadventures with the executioner at Lille, who gave her the quaint shoulder emblem, Cardinal Richelieu, Anne of Austria, England's Duke of Buckingham, and lastly the Musketeers. The author has successfully combined thrills and excitement on a par with Dumas' original with his own individual style. It's a swell book for a rainy night.

The Three Musketeers ride again—this time across the western prairie—in Zane Grey's last thriller, "Western Old" (Harper and Brothers, $2). The old master of the westerns was never better than in this account of the building of the telegraph line from the Missouri to the coast.

Grey's musketeers include a Boston tenderfoot, a quick-shooting Texan, his plodding partner and a melancholy cowboy, drawn together to help build the telegraph. They do more fighting than building and drive off Indians, and black hearted white scoundrels with unusual ease.

A dancing girl and a southern beauty are around to be rescued at various intervals.

The climax is typical of Grey with guns blazing and wild rides across the plains. For all of those readers, who as boys and men have followed Grey's gun-blazed trail from 'Riders of the Purple Sage' this last volume will mark the end of countless hours of thrill-packed reading.

WINCHESTER, Va. —(AP)—The Irish hospitals have their Sweepstakes, but Memorial Hospital here decided a "Bevestakes" would be more appropriate for Winchester. Three fine baby beeves were given to the hospital's Junior auxiliary by Mrs. John Hay Whitney, noted turf woman, from the registered stock on her Llangollen estate. The calves were awarded through the streets in advance of the auction.

Al Capone Is to Return to Miami

Florida City Won't Bother Him If He Minds His Business

Al Capone was expected to be released from Terminal Island prison, California, November 19, after serving seven years. This story tells how the former gang leader may resume life in the outside world.

AP Feature Service
MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—As far as the city of Miami Beach is concerned, Alphonse Capone will not be molested at his white-walled Palm Island estate, as long as he behaves himself and keeps proper company.

That was the immediate reaction of Police Chief H. V. Yocum when he learned the former gang chieftain planned to return here after serving a federal sentence for income tax evasion.

Capone must report to Chief Yocum for fingerprinting and "mugging" for the rogues gallery files. Any subsequent police action will depend on whether Capone is wanted elsewhere, and on his behavior.

When Al lolled at his palatial estate in the old days he was surrounded by underworld figures. He gave parties and went to the horse races and prize fights occasionally. But there was no real peace for him. The police were forever peering out from the shadows.

Now, apparently, he may live the quiet life.

He may take a morning dip in the estate's beautiful swimming pool, loll around in the sun and even have his breakfast served outside in the patio. If he wishes to stretch his legs with leisurely walks, the grounds are ample.

The estate residence at No. 93 Palm Island cost $40,000 but Capone spent an estimated additional $200,000 for improvements that included the swimming pool and a wharf for his fishing cruiser.

The estate was blanketed by a federal income tax lien within an hour after his conviction in 1931, and his

Fuehrer at Scene of Beer Hall Blast

Adolf Hitler escaped death by minutes when blast, believed caused by a time bomb, shattered the Burgerbrau Beer cellar where he had just finished making speech on anniversary of his "Beer Hall Putsch" of 1923. Shown at left at 1937 celebration in the beer hall are Ritter von Epp, Rudolf Hess, deputy party leader; Hitler and Gerd Marshall Hermann Goering, and other comrades. Hess, close friend of the German Fuehrer and No. 3 Nazi, was one of party leaders present to hear Hitler's fighting war speech.

Honors Dead Putsch Comrades

Hitler has escaped death twice in Munich beer cellar. Less fortunate were 16 of his comrades, killed in the 1923 Beer Hall Putsch. The Nazi Fuehrer is shown at one of the tombs of the putsch victims.

With Hitler at Beer Hall

Nazi party leaders who attended putsch anniversary celebration at Munich with Adolf Hitler included Dr. Robert Ley, head of the labor front; Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister; Julius Streicher, anti-semitic editor; and Alfred Rosenberg, head of foreign political office.

Short Speech Foils Killers

Lengthy orations have been the habit with Hitler, shown speaking above, but he cut his latest one short in Munich because of pressing business and escaped explosion in beer cellar where he was addressing "putsch" anniversary crowd.

Thompson Expects Razorback Victory

"We're Not Going to Little Rock to Lose," Coach Declares

FAYETTEVILLE— "We aren't going to Little Rock Friday to lose another ball game," Coach Fred C. Thompson said Wednesday afternoon as he sent his University of Arkansas Razorbacks through their final home practice before they play Southern Methodist University.

Thompson said he had received reports from Dallas that Madison Bell, S. M. U. coach, planned to use Mustang reserves against the Razorbacks in most of the game Friday. All three members of Thompson's coaching staff will be the first time any of them have been on the sidelines of an Arkansas game this year. Line Coach Glen Rose, Backfield Coach George Cole and Freshman Coach Gene Lambert have scouted opponents' games on all other week-end days this season.

Squad Drills in Cold Rain
The squad drilled for more than three hours this afternoon in a cold rain. All of the players were covered with mud when darkness forced them to stop.

Two teams threw passes against freshmen and reserves most of the afternoon. Co-Capt. Kay Eakin did the first team's passing, while the second team's aerial attack started from Guy Gray, 190-pound junior. The two teams made frequent pass completions, although the ball was wet.

Estes McDaniels, 195-pound junior, played an outstanding defensive role in knocking down passes on S. M. U. aerial plays run by the freshmen.

The Razorbacks will leave here Thursday on a bus for Conway where they will practice on Hendrix College field Thursday afternoon. The squad will spend Thursday night in Conway and leave early Friday morning for Little Rock.

Parker Not to Play
Sam Parker, 255-pound senior guard from Little Rock, is on the injured list and will be unable to perform at home. Halfback Walter Hamberg is suffering from a knee injury and also may be unable to see action.

Thompson said the starting Arkansas lineup probably will be:
Ends—Maurice Britt and Howard "Red" Hickey.

Tackles—Jan Carter and Dudley Mays.

Guards—Milton Simington and Wilfred Thorpe.

Center—Daryl Cato.

Backs—Estes McDaniels, Ralph Atwood, Ray Cole and Kay Eakin.

Fullback—Elliott Sutherland, 180-pound junior, and O'Neil Adams, 195-pound sophomore, probably will see action at end positions, Thompson said. Both players have been used in pass plays in practice this week.

Several hundred students and the 60-piece Razorback band will leave Fayetteville shortly after midnight Thursday aboard a special train for Little Rock.

Tennessee Hopes Get Rose Bowl Bid

Vols Have Trampled Every Thing in Sight Past Two Seasons

By OSCAR THOMPSON
AP Feature Service
KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—They're humming "California Here We Come" down in the Volunteer state.

It's all because Major Bob Neyland has come up with another football powerhouse at Tennessee—one which the folk hereabouts say can't miss landing in the Pasadena Rose Bowl pageant.

The handsome former army engineer has been turning out gridiron juggernauts since he landed here in 1925, but they are wont to call this one his masterpiece. It has everything—power, speed, deception, resourcefulness and a host of notable reserves.

It's no secret that Neyland would like nothing better than to show his wares in the California classic. One of his bitterest disappointments was failing to receive the invitation in 1929.

Tennessee had trampled everything in sight in the South up to its traditional Thanksgiving engagement with Kentucky. In fact, Neyland took his athletes to Lexington with a Rose Bowl summons in his pocket—contingent, of course, on a victory over the Wildcats.

And what happened? A punt was blocked, Kentucky scored to tie the Vols 6-6, and puff went the bid to Pasadena.

Last year the Vols were knocking at the Rose Bowl portals again. They came up to December unbeaten and untied and in a receptive mood to travel west.

But Duke was summoned to California and once more Neyland's hopes of making a westward junket were dashed. (He settled for the Orange Bowl in Miami, where Tennessee routed Oklahoma, 17-0).

"Well," he remarked after the choice had been made known. "It looks like you have to go out and pile up a big score to get any recognition."

So what happened? So Neyland, contrary to custom, sent his boys into their final game against Mississippi, a Southern power that year, with instructions not to spare the horses. Results: The Vols buried the Rebels under an avalanche of touchdowns, 47-0, causing Harry Mehre, Mississippi mentor to mutter: "They simply don't play my kind of football."

Little wonder, then, that Tennessee partisans are talking profusely in terms of "howls" and where they'll be next New Year's Day.

To them the Alabama game was "the Rose Bowl playoff." It's foolish to try to convince them that the Vols' stunning 21-0 triumph over the Crimson Tide didn't usher Tennessee right into Pasadena.

But all this "howl" chatter is like a knife in the back to Neyland. "It's silly," he says. "We've still got a lot of tough games to play."

Circuit Court Ball

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.— "Old Dazzy Vance, the one-time Brooklyn fire-baller, lays claim to the dubious honor of pitching 'the longest homerun ball in baseball history.'"

Dazzy told about this feat while here to visit friends and recalled that Babe Ruth was his helper.

During an exhibition game a good many years ago, Vance said, he grooved one and the Babe socked it... a mile, at least.

"Far behind the fence in left center there was a tree loaded with small Negro boys. I pitched a fast one and the Babe golfed it."

"The ball struck a boy on the high-left limb. He lost his balance and toppled. He started an avalanche that tree dropped small Negroes for 30 minutes."

Nevada Farmers Building Up Soil

B. W. Chambers Reports Success With New Evening Classes

According to B. W. Chambers, vocational Agriculture Instructor, many farmers of Nevada county have demonstrated their willingness and determination to cooperate with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in carrying out the much needed soil building practices.

Many interesting reports have been given by farmers in various evening schools of the county regarding the favorable results which they have achieved through the use of different soil building practices. Evening school classes have been organized at Mt. Moriah, Sutton, and Lanesburg. In the evening school classes farmers are not only given an opportunity but are encouraged to add to the discussion any experiences which he desires. From a discussion of the experiences of each other and by attempting to bring out the truth which scientists have developed, each individual farmer will develop principles and practices which he can use in his own particular farming operations. Just now, our American farmers face the acute problem of uniting their efforts in cooperative endeavor.

The way farmers have worked together whole heartedly in attempting to solve the cotton problems is sufficient evidence to substantiate the fact that they are ready to cooperate in every way possible to correct the present situation. They have demonstrated since the beginning of the Federal Farm Program in 1933 their willingness to cooperate in holding production and marketing in line with demand.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 12 miles of tiny tubes which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

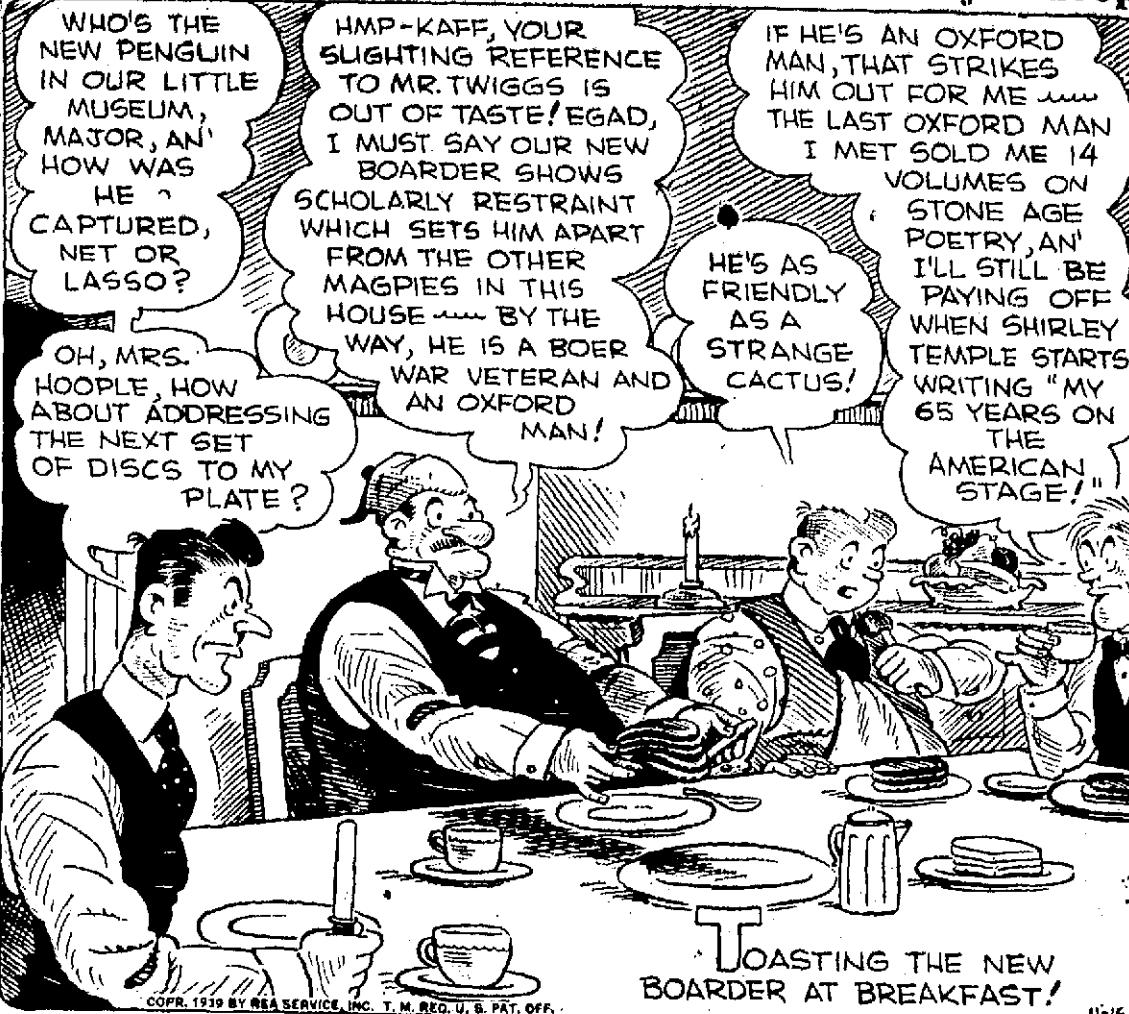

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty urination with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

SERIAL STORY

5 WOULD KILL

BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Arnold Benthorpe named the person who had killed him as he waited for his murderer. His luck has run out. While he recalls his phenomenal business success, the door opens, the killer enters. Benthorpe recognizes his visitor, takes a desperate chance.

CHAPTER II
HUDDLED against the gatepost, Patrolman Flynn had not missed the sliver of light that filtered through the rain as Arnold Benthorpe peered out into the storm. For hours he had watched that window, steadily, throughout the night. He knew Arnold Benthorpe was in that room—waiting. "Poor fool," Flynn said to himself. "Him and all his money—and afraid that someone's going to get him. Sitting up there waiting. Cold and wet as they are, I'd rather be in Dan Flynn's shoes to-night than Arnold Benthorpe's."

He jumped, involuntarily, at the sudden flash of lightning and the clap of thunder that followed. He hunched his shoulders deeper into his raincoat, resumed his pacing back and forth before the gate.

A TAXICAB slid to a stop at the curb. The door opened and a young man's head emerged. "Officer! Oh, officer!" the young man called.

Flynn turned. "What do you want, at this time of the night? If you're drunk, you're disorderly and I'll—"

"It's not drunk I am, officer. We're looking for a minister. We want to get married."

"What?"

"That's right, officer," the taxi driver put in. "There used to be a minister lived around here someplace. These kids—"

"These idiots!" Officer Flynn retorted. "Here, let's have a look at you." His flashlight sent a beam through the darkness to show the laughing face of a youth peering out the cab door. Raindrops flecked the young man's red hair.

"You've an honest face," Officer Flynn conceded grudgingly. "And that wild look in your eyes explains why you'd be getting yourself married on a night like this. But where's the girl that'd be marrying the likes of you?" His flashlight swept the interior of the cab.

Huddled in the corner was the girl. She was small, dark of hair, dark of complexion. It was her eyes that Officer Flynn remembered best, later in the night. "Smoky, they were, sir," he reported, "just like little live coals with a wisp of smoke coming from them."

"Can't you wait to be married in the morning, like decent folks?" Flynn growled at her, but his tone belied his anger.

"It's his idea, not mine!" the girl answered from her corner.

Flynn turned back to the young man. "It's a surly wife you're picking, if I may say so, lad. But then my own is no angel. Now what are your names?"

"Do you have to know that, officer?" the youth asked. "After all, we've committed no crime, just asking your help in finding a minister."

"Anyone that stops in front of Arnold Benthorpe's house tonight has to give his name. Captain's orders. Come on, now tell me who you are."

Illustrations by Ed Gunder.

"If you're going to write down our names, you'd better step into the cab, sir," the youth suggested. "Here, climb in. I'll stand out on the curb. I'll turn on the light for you."

Flynn pulled his notebook out of a raincoat pocket, leaned wet and dripping, into the cab. In the light the girl was even prettier. She pulled her slicker closer about her, turned her face to the darkness. "Now your name, son."

"John Douglas," came the voice behind him.

"And yours," Flynn nodded toward the girl. Her answer was softly spoken, so softly Flynn hardly heard.

"Ara Johnson."

"And let's see your license," to the cab driver. The driver fumbled in his pocket for a moment, finally withdrew a greasy card. "N-i-c-k S-m-i-t-h," Flynn spelled out slowly. "Well, looks all right. Now you get going, you'll find a minister on 21st and—Say! Where did that young fellow go?"

The cab's motor roared. Swiftly the girl reached across the seat, gave Flynn a shove and slammed the door. Before the patrolman could recover his balance and struggle to draw his revolver the cab had disappeared in the darkness. John Douglas was nowhere in sight.

Flynn's whistle shrilled through the night.

"HEY, you, where do you think you're going?" The policeman, gun in hand, darted from the shadows of the garage, hurried to the figure that had just come up the walk.

"I beg your pardon," a soft voice answered. "I am William Alston. I've come to see my daughter, Mrs. Benthorpe. She called for me. I am sure she's expecting me. May I ring?"

"Captain's orders were to admit no one, sir," the policeman's tone was deferential. "Go ahead, ring the bell, and we'll see."

Sooners Pointing for P. Christman

Oklahoma Coach "Keyed" Team for Battle With Missouri

NORMAN Okla., (AP)—Passin' Paul Christman's press notice are beginning to jolt the Oklahoma Sooners, thanks to Coach Tom Stidham.

Stidham, who believes that as Christman goes, so goes Missouri, has been feeding his boys double doses of Passin' Paul's publicity, hoping they would get sufficiently fed up to do things to the big, blond aerial Sox football game at Columbia.

Every time the Sooners turn around in their dressing room, Christman's smiling face beams down on them from newspaper clippings on the wall. The sly Stidham virtually has plastered the room with "mug shots."

Christman sipping a malt with a bevy of Missouri co-ed pass-catchers, a pretty girl to his pass-catching teammates, the Orf twins, Christman doing this, Christman doing that, Christman! Christman! Christman!

And, not satisfied with the pictures, Stidham had the No. 44 which adorns Christman's playing jersey all over the room with colored adhesive tape. The magic number even loom up in the mirror before which the players comb their hair.

"Get Pete here," Joey ordered. He turned to a noisy table.

"Lo Marge, Jo Dave." A wave encompassed the others. "Getting off to a late start. Past midnight, Dave, and you're still on your feet—"

"Been here almost two hours—only six drinks, and still can see—" Dave laughed. "What you doing, Joey, cutting your whiskey now?"

"Takes champagne to get you going, Dave." And as Pete touched his elbow, "Pete, champagne for Dave's crowd, on me." They all cheered and whooped after him as he walked away. "I'll be back soon, stick around and we'll have another round before closing."

They'd remember the champagne, and the time, too. Joey wanted them to remember the time. They'd forget about the floor show, if they could see it.

"I'll be back in an hour, Pete," he added in a lower tone. "It's after midnight now." Joey pulled his wrist in front of him, made sure Pete saw his watch. "Take over." He went out into the rain.

In his car a few minutes later, he stopped under a street light, set the hands of his watch back, exactly one hour.

Allies 9-to-5 Bet in Lengthy War

Even in Military Power, Superior in Food and Raw Materials

By MORGAN W. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
WASHINGTON—If staying power makes a winner in modern warfare, then it's beginning to look as if the score is about 9 to 5 in favor of the Allies.

That's the consensus when you put economics first and military strength last in a comparison of the belligerent powers. A major factor tipping the scales in the Allies favor is America's capacity to produce armaments for them.

Here's a table based on the best available estimates:

	Perfect Score	Allies	Germany
Food Supply	20	20	10
Raw Materials	20	20	8
Financial Assets	20	20	16
Industrial Capacity	15	15	3
Military Strength	15	15	15
Organization for war	10	4	10

Total 100 90 50
Here's the analysis:

Food Supply
Germany can produce 83 per cent of the absolute necessities of life for her 81,000,000 people. You have that on the word of the usually reliable German Institute of Business Research. But Germany has a deficiency of vegetables, fruits, and fats.

Germany has reserves of 8,600,000 tons of grain, more than a year's supply. On the other hand, the Americas and the British and French empires normally supply 5,000,000 tons of Germany's food deficiency, while only 2,250,000 tons normally come from sources closer to home. But supplies from the Americans and the British and French empires are barred by the British blockade. This draws Germany's good rating down to 10 points out of a possible 20.

The French and British have the money and the ships to bring in their food deficiencies, submarine warfare notwithstanding. They rate the full 20 points.

Raw Materials

Official German figures indicate that Germany must import at least one-third of all her raw materials. Denied to her by the blockade are the nearly 3,000,000 tons of rubber, gasoline, and mineral oil, she has been getting from the Americas. Open to her are the 10,000,000 tons of war metals and chemicals she annually receives from the Scandinavian countries.

The important deficiencies of oil, rubber, and gasoline pull Germany's raw material rating down to 8 points out of the possible 20.

The Allies have the ships and the money to obtain raw materials. They rate the full 20 points.

Financial Assets

Great Britain leads all the belligerents with at least $4,700,000,000 in gold and investments abroad that can quickly be turned into gold. France comes next with $1,700,000,000 in gold reserves, and liquid assets abroad of $700,000,000 most of which are in the United States. But the Allies cannot borrow money in the United States as they did in the last war. That pulls their financial rating down to 16 out of the possible 20 points.

The Reich is poor indeed when it comes to cash. The American Foreign Policy Association indicates in its October report that the Reich might be able to muster $800,000,000 in gold and foreign assets. In addition, however, the Germans have a bartering power to be reckoned with. They mobilized about $2,000,000,000 worth of bartering power in 1938. Some experts figure they can produce half that in wartime. But even so, German strength on the financial front is insignificant. They get four points out of a possible 20.

Industrial Capacity

Until the United States lifted the arms embargo, Germany had the advantage here. Neither France nor Great Britain could match her armaments output. But the lifting of the arms embargo put America's capacity to manufacture military equipment at the disposal of the Allies, as long as their cash holds out. Some authorities say this may account for 25 per cent of the Allied industrial output on the basis of a long term war.

This factor boosts the Allied rating to the full 15 points, and pulls the German rating down to 3 points for the long pull, because none of her auxiliary sources of supply has anywhere near the industrial capacity of the United States.

Military Strength

Here the two powers will match up fairly evenly for sometime to come, due to Germany's head start, in the opinion of most experts. The superior German air fleet (perhaps one and one-half to one in first line planes) balances the superiority of the French artillery. The British army is hardly a factor until a long training period has elapsed. And in view of the obvious stalemate on the western front, each gets a rating of 15 points on military staying power.

Here's where the Germans shine. The Nazis had a six year head start on the Allies. They have been practicing a rigid war regimentation in economics and industry ever since Hitler came to power in 1933. The Allies did not begin large-scale military and economic organization for war until a year ago. And even though war itself has a tendency to unify moral and economic strength on both sides, Germany's start gives her a full score of 10 points on organization for war, against the Allies' four.
